Risk Factors

We depend on a limited number of Tier 1 customers and OEMs for a substantial portion of our revenue..., page 24

1. We note your response to prior comment 8 that the Company does not believe the identity of its largest Tier 1 customers is material to an understanding of its business taken as a whole or necessary for investors to make an informed decision. Given that each of your

three largest customers have historically generated a material portion of your revenue and the company

does not have long-term written agreements with those customers, the identity of the customers appears to be material information necessary for investors to understand the scope of the risk in the event that the customers discontinue or Anat Heller are unable to continue their relationship with the company. Please identify the customers

agreements with the customers but rather provides its products to such customers pursuant  $% \left( 1\right) =\left( 1\right) +\left( 1\right) +$

 $\ensuremath{\text{to}}$  standard purchase orders. Disclose also that the purchase orders and terms and conditions do not require your largest Tier 1 customers to purchase your solutions in any quantity or at a certain price.

2. You state that the sanctions and export controls imposed on Russia may contribute to  $% \left( 1\right) =\left( 1\right) +\left( 1\right) +\left($ higher oil and gas prices and inflation, which could reduce demand for solutions. Please further disclose whether and how your business segments, products, lines  $% \left( 1\right) =\left\{ 1\right\} =\left\{ 1\right\}$ of service, projects, or operations are materially impacted by supply chain disruptions in  $% \left( 1\right) =\left( 1\right) +\left( 1\right)$ light of the conflict between Russia and Ukraine, specifically regarding the semiconductors needed for your EyeQ SoCs.
